Sri 5:32 AM

hi Bob, team

Lippy1m 5:33 AM

I haven't posted much since joining at the end of November, but I do watch this daily throughout the day as I work. I really appreciate this chat group and all the different perspectives it brings. I have learned so much the last month and looking forward to an entire year of it in 2020. Little bit about me, I have been following the Crisper stocks since they IPO'd a few years back. I have done detailed research on them and follow the patent battle as well. I own a few thousand shares of EDIT, they through the Broad currently have the patent to modify DNA in humans, they also have CPF1 or CAS12 which can modify even more than CAS9 and they will be doing in vivo (inside the body) the first ever human patient right after the new year to fix blindness with a disease called LCA10. EDIT has seen a run up the last few weeks from the low 20's to the low 30's and seeing much higher volume than normal. I contribute this to a few reasons, one their first human trial is starting, two the patent battle is getting close to the end with EDIT being the current patent holder, three the recent M&A activity in the gene therapy space. All this points to a bright future for EDIT in the next few months, I believe. I have quite a few of the May 35 options in at 4.84, with the patent battle wrapping up and the first patient dosing and results should all be past us by Mid May these could do pretty well. Thanks again everyone and have a great holiday and Happy New Year coming up. Matt...
